Our destiny exercises its influence over us even when; as yet, we have not learned its nature: it is our future that lays down the law of our today."--
Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche

It may be considered that the lives we lead as high school students are routine, passive, and infrequently stimulating. This may be so--to an extent. For the most part we are unconscious of the extraordinary fact that every expression of our existence is enacted for some future fulfillment. We know with whatever meager knowledge we may have what kind of lives we hope someday to attain. This awareness is rarely accompanied by the realization that present efforts constitute stepping stones to the future. It is not until we look in retrospect upon a segment of our lives, such as a high school career, that we realize that in these days of routine and sameness we have carved pathways ahead.

To the unknown, the uncharted, the hopeful--
THE FUTURE--we dedicate this first edition of the Oculus.

CURRICULUM

To the Class of 1961:

As we move into the age of space and science much is being said and written about education, particularly at the secondary level. The public is becoming increasingly concerned about the quality and quantity of learning, and new and evermore numerous tests, criteria, and standards are being devised to measure the effectiveness of education.

Thus, it is perhaps in order to inquire, "What is a high school?" Surely it is not a mere building, for a high school building during a vacation period is purposeless. Some may suggest that a high school should be judged by its faculty. However, a faculty, even though composed of distinguished scholars, cannot make a high school. Is it then the students? Although requisite to any school, students alone are not enough.

There are two answers that might be made to the question. A high school is a community of adults and young people who, whether administrators, faculty members, students, parents, or interested citizens, have partaken in the attainment of common goals and ideals. The second answer may be that a high school is that spirit of scholarly endeavor expressed by the common ideals of the community.

Therefore, what Beachwood High School is today and what it becomes in the future depends, at least in part, upon each of you. The spirit of fair play, of intellectual seeking, of brotherly kindness which may have been fostered here will go with you wherever you may go. In this spirit our high school will be reflected.

As members of the first graduating class you have had a prize responsibility in the development of traditions, attitudes, and school spirit. As our first alumni your responsibility for reflecting the spirit of Beachwood High School in the community-at-large will be continuous.

Clark M. Fouts
Principal

Greetings, Seniors:

I envy you! You can be part of the most rapid change in man's relationship to man that has ever been known. The age you live in will be exciting. The world of work in undergoing a revolution. The frontiers of thought and the spheres of operation of individuals and of our nation are ever becoming wider, and you will be part of it! Thus, your life can be exciting or frustration, frightening or exhilarating. Which it will be depends on you! Your happiness, your material wealth--also depends on you. What YOU are and will become is dependent upon your ability and willingness to grow intellectually, emotionally and spiritually. This your parents and teachers are helping you to do. Have you helped them? This is your last year in high school but other teachers will follow--college instructors, parents and friends. Will you cooperate with them?

You are the first graduating class from this high school. Our prayer is that you will always be first--first in showing friendship, first in demonstrating compassion, first in pushing wider the barriers to understanding.

Our hopes ride with you.

Faculty Aid Inquiring Minds

The students of Beachwood High are fortunate that their faculty is not one to limit its contact with the student body to the classroom. One often finds classrooms humming with activity long after school is dismissed. The time it takes for a student to grasp a certain point is not limited by the bell tolling the end of a class period.

School to these teachers is more than a daily routine; it means getting to know the young people whose lives they directly influence. Students have become well acquainted with many of the teachers and their families at athletic events, dances, and other extracurricular activities. They realize what great pride their faculty takes in Beachwood High when they observe their wives and children among those boosting Beachwood's teams.

During the classroom hours, the instructors of Beachwood High provide for flexibility in individual progress. The inquiring mind is encouraged and given every possible opportunity to learn by discovery. The teachers are continually striving to challenge their pupils.

As a result of all these things, Beachwood students feel toward their faculty a unique closeness and appreciation.

Meets Varied Needs

Although a small school, Beachwood offers a full curriculum to fulfill the needs of its pupils. Three foreign languages, taught with the aid of a new language laboratory, and complete science and mathematics departments make it possible for students to advance as far as they wish in their chosen fields. Excellent English and social studies programs round out the academic curriculum and help to make it one of the finest in the area.

Beachwood emphasizes college preparatory studies. There are two college preparatory courses offered, the regular course and the advanced courses. Students participating in the advanced program begin accelerating in the eighth grade so that by their senior year they are able to take courses for advanced placement in college.

In addition to these, Beachwood also has fine music, art, and business departments. Music and art students have won much recognition in city-wide contests. Many of the student body take typing and shorthand from the business department in addition to their regular courses.

Staff Makes School Run Smoothly

Behind the scenes at Beachwood, the staff helps to keep the high school running smoothly. Mrs. Evadna Kinney's job as school secretary encompasses everything from answering the telephone to administering minor first aid. Her patience, understanding, and friendliness have made her a favorite of the student body.

During lunch period, Beachwood's staff of cooks comes into the spotlight. Throughout the school year, they have prepared a wide variety of excellent food to appease the ravenous hunger of the students.

Truly versatile, Beachwood's custodians have on occasion participated in boys' physical education classes and sung in school productions. In addition they drive team buses, push cars out of snow, and care for the building. They are certainly the backbone of the school.

Junior Class Compensates for Lack

Although the smallest class in the school, the junior class had a very active and profitable year. As they progressed throughout the months, the juniors prepared themselves for the leadership that they must assume as seniors.

Because of the size of Beachwood, the group played a greater and more important role in school activities than is usual for students in their grade. Among them were the secretary and treasurer of the student council, editor of the Beachcomber and many varsity players. Their intensified studies--including American history, English, advanced algebra and chemistry--their general participation in every activity, and their high standards in all their endeavors have directed the class toward the responsibilities of the coming year.

Their fund-raising program for the past two semesters included the Junior Prom, the most important money-raising and social event; a carnival held in January; the sale of sweatshirts denoting class affiliation; and hops after basketball games. Led by President Don Wachsberger, Vice President Shelley Friedman, Secretary Ilene Shane, and Treasurer Carolyn Lapine, they have made a good start toward financing their senior prom. Aiding them in all their projects was their class advisor, Patrick Dowling.

The prospect of graduation and college became more real to the eleventh graders as they took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, and learned about various colleges and vocations. Returning next September, they will begin to realize the fulfillment of all they have worked for this year.

The sophomores' spark in promoting school functions and general exuberant spirit have helped to make this a worthwhile year. Their faithful presence at the football and basketball games and their participation in school clubs and varsity athletics have laid a good foundation for the following years when they must assume more leadership.

The sophomores have the distinction of being the first class to go straight through the Beachwood school system, previous classes having attended other high schools. Beginning the advanced college preparatory course was another opportunity offered to a group of them.

Disecting frogs, proving triangles congruent, and diagramming sentences, were all incorporated in the sophomores' various lessons. As they approached the status of upperclassmen, they learned the meaning of burning the midnight oil. However, hard work and interesting extracurricular activities have made this a memorable year for all the sophomores.

Progress Marks Council's Year

As the heart of the school, Beachwood's student council engaged in many activities throughout the year. In order to encompass the interests of all the students, the council's agenda included scholastic, athletic, and social programs.

To encourage academic excellence the council set up a scholarship fund in conjunction with the Beachwood Booster's Club. It also made grade distribution sheets available and introduced citizenship awards for the best citizens of each homeroom.

The council encouraged student attendance at sports events by assisting the P.T.A. in providing transportation to and from the events. It also purchased much of the cheerleaders' equipment.

To appeal to the social interests of the student body, the council sponsored three all-school dances. The annual Sno-Ball, always the highlight of the winter season, the Beatnik Dance, honoring all "cool cats," and the St. Patrick's Day Dance all helped to make Beachwood's social season a success.

Led by President Jerry Fishman, Vice-president Jim Cowan, Secretary Fran Curva, and Treasurer Gerry Orlove, the council also delved into various other projects concerned with the general bettering of the school. To aid the publicizing of events, a bulletin board was set up. The general clean-up campaign greatly improved the appearance of the school.

National Honor Society

SEATED: Laura Huber, Barbara Falcon, Jeri Silverman, Toby Rutman. STANDING: David Marsh, Gary Weiner, Alan Brotman, Gerald Fishman, Mr. Robert Dober (advisor). Merle Rabine.

As recognition for scholastic excellence, nine seniors were initiated as charter members of the National Honor Society. The official charter received by Beachwood granted the school the opportunity to organize this club with the purpose of offering leadership and direction to the student body.

One important achievement of the Honor Society was the instituting of an annual college program in which alumni of the school return to discuss their college experiences with the juniors and seniors. In this way the students will gain valuable information that will help them in the choice that they will have to make. The club also worked with the student council on various projects.

Led by President Gary Weiner, Vice-president Dave Marsh, Secretary Barb Falcon, and faculty advisor Mr. Robert Dober, the National Honor Society worked diligently to achieve its goals.

Latin Club

Reading current events and laughing at jokes written in Latin were not only new experiences to the members of the Latin Club, but also proved that Latin is not a "dead language." To supplement regular classroom work, the Latin Department joined the National Latin Club and the Junior Classical League, which publish several magazines written in the classic language of the ancient Romans. In order to pay for these memberships, the Latin Club sponsored a dance, the Roman Rock, in late October of last year.

Although no actual meetings were held, all students studied Latin belonged to the club and were given the opportunity to read the literature which was sent to the school twice a month.

SEATED: Bill Waldman, Ronald Barron, Robert Baker, John Lieberman.
STANDING: Elliott Barkin, Jack Berk, Alan Klein, Charles Ruffing, Edward Rudolph (guitar), Blaise Giusto (piano).

Beachwood's dance band did not limit itself to simple playing popular music. Under the direction of Mr. Alex Shapiro, the band members learned how to copy music, write jazz, and improvise.

Another innovation by the dance band was an exchange program with other members of the SOWMaC Student Council. Throughout the year the band played at assemblies at other SOWMaC schools as well as at Beachwood.

To add pep to some of the home basketball games, some of the members of the band formed a Dixieland Combo. This group contributed greatly to the enthusiasm at the games.

Spanish Club

Next best to visiting Spain were the projects undertaken by the Spanish Club. Composed of second year Spanish students, the club met every other week in the home of one of the members with the assistance of its advisor, Miss Mills.

Since the members were interested in the culture of Spain as well as its language, they obtained slides and movies about Mexico and Spain including one movie about bullfighting. In addition they engaged various speakers and planned Spanish dances. One of the highlights of the year was a special dinner, for which the girls prepared an all-Spanish cuisine.

Students Enjoy Music in Choirs

Bringing joy to others and having fun themselves through music is the main objective of those who participate in the Beachwood High School choirs under the leadership of Mr. Alex Shapiro.

The Girls' Glee Club is the most active of the school's three singing groups. Several old age homes and hospitals invited the girls to entertain their patients, and a local radio station included the Glee Club in its program of Christmas carols.

The Ninth Grade Choir and the Eighth Grade Chorus entertained at several school assemblies both as a combined choir and as separate groups.

The strains of marches and other concert pieces greeted students as they entered school each morning this past year. As the school day allowed no time for an activity period, the members of Beachwood High School's Concert Band, led by Mr. Alex Shapiro, volunarily gave up precious moments of sleep to practice before school.

The group took part in school assemblies as well as P.T.A. and Booster Club functions. Their year was highlighted by their participation in the SOWMAC Band Festival and Spring Concert in April. In May, members of the group competed individually and in ensembles at the Solo and Ensemble Contest.

" . . . Promoting, through educational means, understanding, cooperation and mutual respect among all people and among the various religious, racial, social, and cultural groups to which they belong." This is the theme of the Council on Human Relations, a group which functions actively at Beachwood High School as it does at many others.

The council began at Beachwood High this past year. Scheduled meetings were held and Cheryl Weisberg, organizer of the club, was elected president. Each member participated actively in at least one of the special project committees.

City-wide meetings were held at which speakers from other countries spoke on human relations in their respective lands. Our chapter was well represented at all of these.

Art Club

Any time anyone needed a poster, sign, or display, all he had to do was ask the Art Club. This group of talented students from all grades dedicated itself to handling all art requests from students and faculty.

The club met every Tuesday after school. When there were no requests for exhibits, dance or banquet decorations, or scenery and programs for school productions, members worked on individual projects.

In addition to performing all these services, the club, with its advisor, Miss Lovano, took trips to the Cleveland Museum of Art and in the spring attended the Ohio State Art Career Day at Ohio State University.

Oculus

"Learn as you do" might well be the motto of Beachwood High School's first yearbook staff. Under the able leadership of editor Merle Rabine and associate editor Laura Huber, the enthusiastic students who comprised the staff worked diligently on their first endeavor of this type. With no precedents to follow, they faced a doubly difficult task and encountered many obstacles.

Several staff members had their first introduction to the "Ways and Whys" of yearbook preparation at the Ohio University Journalism Workshop which they attended last June. The rest of the staff had to learn by trial and error, and Mrs. Johns was an invaluable asset to the staff as advisor. Working at their homes on weekends as well as after school, they spent long hours brainstorming copy and making layouts. Many tasks were done, undone and done over again, but little by little, its office constantly humming with activity both during and after school hours, Oculus acquired form and meaning.

Born to Beachwood High School in the year 1958 was the fledgling newspaper, the Beachcomber. Like all youngsters its development has been slow but steady. Its pages have given students inside stories on sports events, the latest fads and the decisions of the Student Council. It included, as well, the news of club activities and the announcement of various coming events.

Along with staff members, contributors in the past years have been faculty members and students of the journalism class. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Dober, advisor, and Tom Sherman, editor-in-chief, the Beachcomber has seen continuous improvement.

Boosting school spirit and giving the team the support they needed was the cheerleaders' job. Whatever the score, the twelve girls that made up Beachwood's varsity and junior varsity squads exhibited exuberant enthusiasm.

At 3:30, when most students left wearily and thankfully for home, the cheerleaders began sessions of rigorous practice. Headed for the third year by Sheila Goldstock, the girls gladly gave up many hours of their time to perfect routines. Working towards this goal, they attended city-wide cheerleading clinics in early autumn. The fruits of their labor were evident every week from September to March at football and basketball games, as well as many pep assemblies. Their spirit in all their undertakings made them one of the outstanding squads in the city.

No girls' gym class is complete without its "Leaders." Ever since its inception, Leaders Club has been an integral part of the girls' physical education program. Its members organize girls'sports activities, assist in gym classes, and referee intramurals. In addition, they serve at all varsity athletics banquets.

A policy of strict qualifications for acceptance has maintained high standards in the group. Besides athletic skill, prospective members must score well on a written examination and receive good recommendations from their teachers.

Throughout the year, in addition to their other activities, Leaders have worked at building sportsmanship, leadership and a sense of responsibility in all of its members.

Boys' Intramurals

The boys ' intramural program was set up to give every interested student an opportunity to participate in his favorite sport twice a week after school. Among the activities offered were volleyball, basketball, softball and wrestling.

The program was organized by the Intramural Athletic Council, headed by boys' physical education teacher, Mr. Warren Emery, and Mark Haas, senior manager. Assisting them were five associate managers, each one representing a different grade. Members of the varsity teams, not permitted to participate in the games, served as referees.

In its first year, the program proved to be a very successful one, and laid a strong foundation for future years.

Girls' Intramurals

Competition was the key word in the girls' intramural activities this year. All Beachwood girls were eligible to compete in the games which were held twice a week after school.

Each program was based on a system in which points were awarded upon the successful completion of each of four steps. The first two were based upon attendance, then an All-Star team was formed. After a process of elimination, the girls most adept in a particular sport became members of the various varsity teams.

Points earned through participation in the team sports and performance in the individual tournaments and demonstrations were totaled for seniors, and sports awards were given.

Work During First League Season

FOOTBALL

Determination, pride, and ever-increasing enthusiasm of both the team members and their boosters were characteristics of Beachwood's first league football season. Nobody in the East County League expected much from "little B" in its infancy. The team often made mistakes, as young teams will, but just as often it made amends with spine-tingling heroics. The Bisons, with their finely-tuned spirit, showed opponents what it meant to be tough.

There were many high points throughout the season, but the most outstanding occurred during four games. Our victory over St. John Cantius and our tremendous sweep that almost upset the league champions Mayfield were Beachwood's greatest efforts. The extreme endeavor to break the tie in the Orange game with only seven seconds remaining and six inches to go for the winning touchdown brought the exuberant crowd onto the sidelines. The surge of power during the second half of the Warrensville game certainly offset last year's loss. The team's aggressive hard play brought opponents to the realization that Beachwood was not a push-over.

Considering the depth of the opposition, coaches Tom Gauntner and Tom Mattern exhibited the true spirit of good, clean sportsmanlike football. Beachwood can be sure that it was represented by a group of boys who knew the real meaning of team work, good sportsmanship, and above all else--hard, sweaty, inglorious practice to achieve perfection.

Rough Welcome

Beachwood's debut in East County League basketball was not too auspicious. In a strong league the Bisons, under Coach Bob Bracale, were outsized and outclassed. Despite this they managed to improve on last year's record.

Highlights of the season were the Bisons' two victories. In January Cardinal, the Great Lakes Conference leaders, came to Beachwood. After trailing for three quarters, the Bisons roared back with 16 points in the fourth to upset the Huskies, 39-36.

There was never any doubt of the outcome in Beachwood's game with Lutheran West. The Bisons jumped to a fast lead and led all the way, winning 50-44. John Forsythe scored the final basket, breaking the team scoring record.

One of the most exciting games of the year was the second game with the undefeated league champions, Warrensville. After a poor first quarter Beachwood matched the taller Tigers shot for shot in their most inspired effort of the year. Blaise Giusto and Jim Cowan led the Bisons with 10 and 15 points respectively.

Co-captain Jim Cowan was again Beachwood's top scorer, finishing with a 10.2 point average. Bruce Carl, with his patented hook shot, came into his own as a forward with an average of 6 points. Co-captain Dave Marsh finished fast, scoring 35 points in the last three games.

Aggressive Play Sparks Jayvees

Although the junior varsity won only three games, including one East County League victory, with a little bit of luck it could have been nine. That close were most jayvee games.

Playing aggressive ball all season, the junior Bisons, under coach Tom Mattern, showed that Beachwood can look forward to an abundance of talent in coming years. Throughout the season they exemplified the spirit and leadership of which Beachwood can be proud.

Bruce Conant and Jim Stitt were the big guns of the jayvees. Conant, elected honorary captain of the team, played every quarter of every game, was leading rebounder, and averaged 7.2 points per game. Stitt, chosen most valuable player of the team, averaged 11.6 points in 11 games. His greatest effort was in the Lutheran West game when he set an individual scoring record with 22 points.

First Golf Season Is Success

As spring 1960 appraoched and basketball season drew to a close, Beachwood's attention turned to the age-old sport of "knocking the little white ball around the links."

With a certain unique anticipation, boys from all grades eagerly awaited the golf qualifier that was held as soon as spring officially arrived. Thirty or more golfers engaged in the eighteen hole qualifier which eventually limited the team to four varsity and four junior varsity members.

Under coaches Richard Hederstrom and Carl Slater, both avid golfers, the team finished third in the six-team SOWMaC league and placed ninth in the district tournament.

Member of last year's varsity were Grey Shelton, Bruce Carl, Curt McDuffee, and Chuck Ruffing. The junior varsity was composed of Gary Weiner, Jim Cowan, Dave Marsh and Mike Patterson.

Ronald H. Woldman, without whose help Oculus would not have been possible.

Peter Prentner, whose advice throughout the year was invaluable.

All students, faculty, staff and parents who cooperated at crucial moments.
